Listen to a conversation between Lucy and Liam, about jobs and decide whether the following sentences are true (T) or false (F).

Liam: Hello Lucy. What are you doing here?

Lucy: Oh hi Liam. I'm on my way to my brother's house. Hey, you can be the first to know. I'm starting work as a lifeguard in two weeks.

Liam: Well done! That's quite a tough job. I know you are in the college swimming team, but I didn't realise you wanted to do it for a living.

Lucy: Well it's only a part-time job for the summer. It's not a career or anything. I just want to get some money together and buy a car. I'm tired of walking to college all the time.

Liam: So where's the job? The local swimming pool, the health centre? Don't tell me it's at the beach. That's my dream job!

Lucy: No, I'm not that lucky. I'm working a lot closer to home. It's the college pool.

Liam: No way! Hey that's great. That means I might see you when I go swimming.

Lucy: Maybe. When do you go? I'm doing the late shift — the afternoon and the evening.

Liam: That's a shame. I'm there first thing in the morning. I can't go at any other time because I'm doing a part-time job of my own.

Lucy: You didn't say anything about that. What are you up to?

Liam: It's just delivery work at my dad's pizzeria —afternoon and evening like you. The usual delivery boy broke his leg last week and everyone else is on summer holidays. The money's not that good, but Dad needed someone for deliveries.

Lucy: That's very good of you. Perhaps I can order a pizza from the pool and you could deliver it.

Liam: It's a nice thought, but you shouldn't eat and swim - it's dangerous.

Lucy: I know, I know. I'm only joking!

Listening 2: (5 Marks)

Listen to Sarah talking about her experience while travelling in Ecuador and put the events in the correct order. Number one has been done for you.

I was travelling in Ecuador in July when something really crazy happened to me! One day, I decided to go on a kayaking trip down a river in the Amazon Rainforest. I got into a kayak and set out with a group of other travelers. At first, it was fantastic. The scenery was very beautiful and exotic birds were flying all around. But then, the river started moving faster and suddenly, I hit a rock, my kayak turned over and I fell out of it into the river. I was trying to swim back to my kayak, when suddenly I saw a strange shape in the water. It was moving quite quickly towards me. “Oh no, Sarah!” my friend Jane shouted. “Quick, get back into the kayak, it’s a crocodile!” Well, I was terrified! I swam as quickly as I could to my kayak but I couldn’t get into it. I turned around and saw that the crocodile was getting closer! I was screaming and shouting! Then, suddenly, I looked down and there was no crocodile — just a big branch from a tree! I was so relieved! Everyone was laughing, but I didn’t think it was very funny!
